My name is Travis Morrison, I have been falsely charged & convicted. It's easy knowlege that life is a vicious cycle and one thing that I have noticed is the state of Idaho is that the judicial system would rather reconvict, for more income, than to help prevent the same mistakes that make one human. A drug addict get a chance at a court appointed program. But its just treating a symptom but not the cause. The cause for most of us incarcerated in a state that keeps holding on onto an outlook that is useless in our country today. A drug dealer could change his/her life by having an education to where they can make money and support their families without relying on the sales of drugs, ex; Most dealers are amazing at finances and would more than likely make a fantastic banker. But without the availability to further educate themselves they will continue doing what they know, and continue down the only path that they know. I have been integent since I have been incarcerated, except a few time a couple of guys locked up with me have gave me some money on my books. My family doesn't even know where i'm at now, and even asking for a simple phone number seems an impossibity to recieve. People can change with the correct tools but we have to be part of the solution NOT the problem. There is a program in the paid section of the tablet, which I can't even afford to look at, that provides us with some education, the Kahn Academy. But greedy people want us to pay for something freely given, it's like paying for air, it's not right and if it was one of us incarcerated, I'm sure someone would try to charge us with something. Being right and justified isn't given by just wearing a badge. It begins with an open heart and the will to change. Since i've been locked up I have seen more honor, respect and righteousness rom people everyone refers to convicts. Most of us can't change our abuse, not for wanting, but because we're not give the tools to make ourselves a better and more useful part of society. We have the will o change but we will never have the power until we are truly given the tools to do so. I have heard great things about the Prison Academy program and the free use of it would be a great start. Please don't dismiss us simply because someone thinks they've judged us cor-ctly. We can shine given the tools to polish ourselves. We can stand all if someone is willing to give us a hand to do so. If you want less rime on the streets, if you want us to change, the system needs to change too. We are only as good as we are allowed to be. Free education would be a great step towards progress. Thank you
